Colorectal cancer is one of the leading causes of cancer deaths in Alberta. It affects 1 in 14 men and 1 in 17 women.

Most cases of colorectal cancer are in people age 50 and older with no family history.

The good news is that 90% of colorectal cases can be treated successfully if found early.

It's time to make colorectal cancer screening a part of your regular health routine. Regular screening can find colorectal cancer in its early stages when treatment is more effective. Screening is for people who feel healthy and have no symptoms.

The Fecal Immunochemical Test (FIT) is an easy test you can do right at home. It looks for blood in your stool (poop) that you can't see.

There are 2 easy ways to get your free FIT kit in Alberta:

- 1. Talk to your doctor or healthcare provider. They will give you a form that you can take to a lab to pick up a FIT kit.
- 2. Order online at screeningforlife.ca or call toll-free at 1-866-727-3926 and a FIT kit will be mailed to you.
